DIGITAL CITIZENSHIP

DAY

Our actions online, just like in person, influence how people think about us. What we post, sites we visit, and what other people say about us are all a part of our reputation.

We are responsible for our actions online.

You are in control of what you post and share online. Even something that seems private, can be shared with others.

You are not in control of how other people behave, what they say, or even what they share about you.

It is your responsibility to put out your best self, both in person and online. Only share and post what you would share in public.

DIGITAL CITIZENSHIP

When you are online, you are a digital citizen. Your actions. You will protect your information as you learn and connect.

intro to topic

DAY 1

Digital citizens use technology responsibly to connect, learn, and create.

When you are online, it is important to protect information about yourself and others. Some information is personal and some is private.

When we talk to others online, it is important that we are kind. Our words can have a big impact.

Our actions online influence how people think about us. What we post, sites we visit, and what other people say about us are all a part of our reputation.

Are you a digital citizen yet?

Polly is a new student at school. She just moved from another state. She dresses a little different and has an accent. A couple kids at school post a picture of Polly and draw a speech bubble on it that says Yee-Haw. Someone else comments that she is weird and won't have any friends.

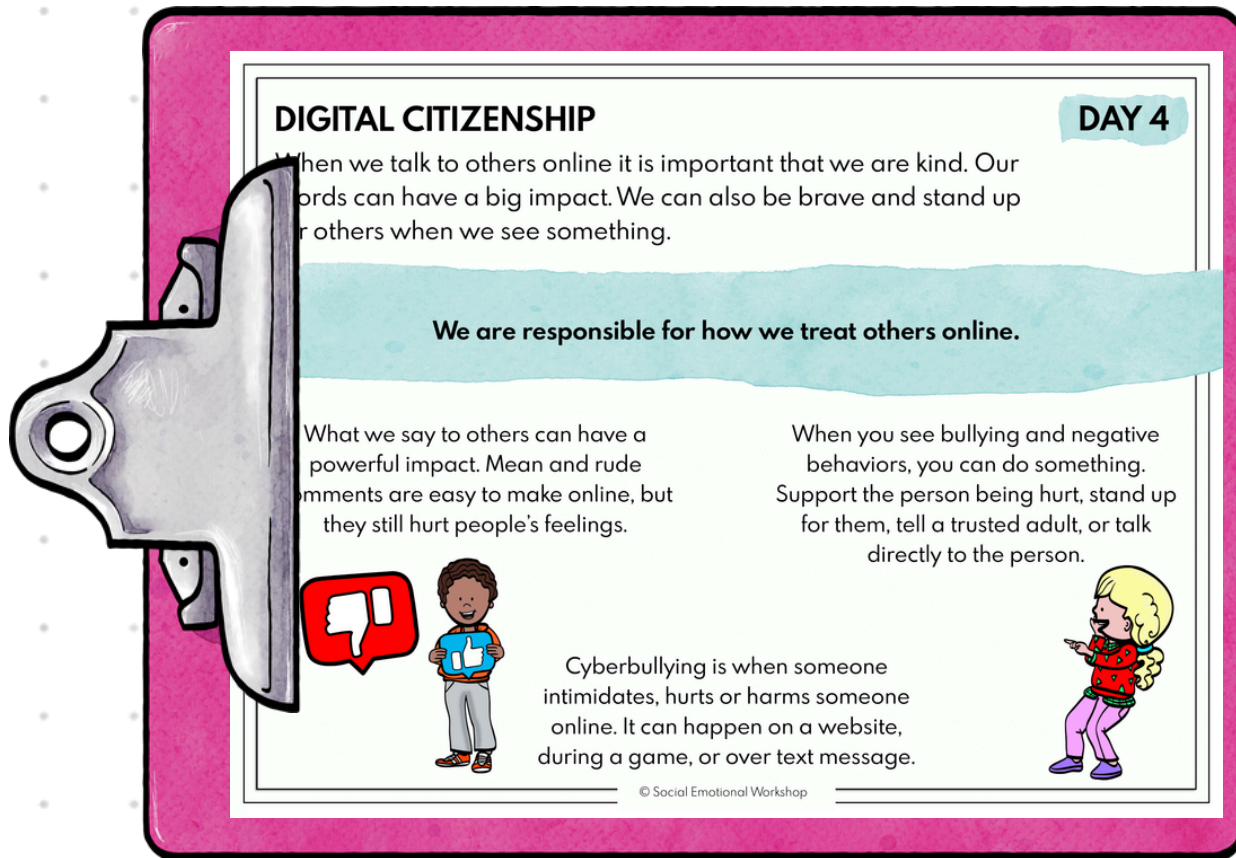

Why are they making fun of Polly?

Hi! I'm Laura

I create research-driven, uncomplicated tools and resources that help students build social and emotional skills in the classroom and counseling.

During ten years as a school psychologist, I wore all the hats - but the one I never took off was supporting my colleagues.

Whether you're a first-year counselor or a seasoned teacher, I want you to have the tools you need to support each student.
